

Heavy Demand For Alaska Road Booklets

New Alaska highway booklets issued by the Alberta Motor Association are in great demand, according to officials of that organization.

In the first edition, 20,000 copies were printed and some office report supplies are exhausted. It appears that an additional number will be required.

Officials of travel bureaus and other agencies in the U.S. and in parts of Western Canada have reported an increased demand for these informative booklets, giving up to date information on regulations dealing with traffic on the 500-mile Alaska highway, from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska.

While the highway has not been opened to general tourist travel and that appears unlikely this year, applications for permits to travel on the highway, received from the B.C.M.P.,

If it is found that the application can be approved and the car is road-worthy, the driver is allowed to proceed north.

The main reason for travel restrictions is that there are an insufficient number of service stations and sleeping accommodations as yet to take care of any large motor tourist movement.

The Wheat Pools are quite agreeable and even anxious to join in any nation-wide campaign to have such funds increased. Of course, the Canadian taxpayer will have to foot the bill, but the contribution and effort and to the general welfare of the nation has earned the right of further financial consideration. Eastern financial interests, now siding with the speculative marketing propagandists, seem to have objections to such a proposal, as should gain general acceptance throughout Canada.

But the Worst People who never in all their history tried to gouge the British consumers, even when that nation was prosperous, certainly do not believe the British people are now passing through an economic Gethsemane, should be called upon to stretch their limited resources further.

Fairly Kept Record Books Asset To Farmer

Among the many activities of the farmer which contribute to the success of his business is the keeping of accurate and fairly complete records in probably one of the most neglected.

Records that may be profitable to the farmer are those which show the cost of his seed, his breeding and production records, records for the identification of purebred stock, grades of his stock, purchases and sales of live stock, feed, machinery, other equipment, and the cost of his labor in which all live stock, feed, supplies, farm machinery and farm buildings are included. The value of these records for each item, will also be found valuable in many different ways.

While it may be assumed that all jobs are equally important and should receive equal care, those which are concerned with live-stock breeding operations are of a more urgent and vital nature than most other because of the probability of their being completely neglected.

The different breed associations have been very successful in being kept in connection with the identification and registration of live stock. This is done in order to facilitate the keeping of such records, most breed associations provide a record book for their members to keep for the livestock breeder and owner.

Record books especially adapted to the keeping of general farm accounts can be obtained for 10 cents from the King's Printer, Ottawa.

Many other record books are available from other companies and other organizations offer farm books free for the asking.

This is no time for small men in big jobs. We need great men in all jobs—even little ones.
